SOME OBEYED. OTHERS REFUSED. NEARLY ALL PAID A PRICE.

They were trained to follow orders — but also sworn to defend the Constitution.

During COVID-19, U.S. service members were given orders that many believed were unlawful and were told their careers depended on compliance. Some obeyed. Others refused. Nearly all paid a price.

This is a film about courage under pressure, institutional failure, and the quiet line where lawful authority ends.

WHY IT MATTERS

This film is not just about the military. It's about conscience, lawful authority, and the cost of integrity when institutions fail.
